This invention pertains to covers for seats and more specifically to covers for vehicle seats to include integral cups and the like in which a beverage or other liquid container is removably fitted and orientated to permit removal of the container without disturbing the cup cover. As is well known, passengers on long trips or the like enjoy the convenience of carrying their own cups of beverage with them to drink during the trip. As will be appreciated, for this to occur the cups must be made of a suitable material that will not absorb moisture or water and therefore be contaminateable by the side of a vehicle. For this reason cups of paper, plastic and the like are generally unacceptable for the purpose, although there have been proposals to provide some co-operative type containment for beverage containers. One example of a cup cover is shown in U.S. Pat. No. 4,162,948 which discloses a container having a lower curved portion in the bottom recess and which is removably engaged with a cover having similar internal structure. Another form of container cover is shown in U.S. Pat. No. 4,459,896 which discloses an elongate resilient cup type cover and which utilizes an open sided cup or container engaged with a suitably open sided cover. Another example of a cup type container cover is shown in U.S. Pat. No. 4,673,977 which discloses a cup package having an internal cage structure for engaging a cup or other containers and which has a compartmentalized arrangement with certain openings or apertures to permit the replacement of a drained beverage. Accordingly, it is

The races of the world of the Tiny Tales are easily divided by their differences in features such as appearance, physiology, biology, and lifestyle. These physical differences also have implications for how the characters use their limbs, resulting in them having varying walking styles. Below is a detailed list of each species' anatomy, divided by their walking style: - Orcs: Swollen eyes, bulky, and largely lacking in grace when it comes to how they walk. - Kobolds: Slender and quick, with a low profile when they walk. - Nagas: Loose and lithe in appearance, they have a fluid gait with a slightly crouched posture. - Charades: Thick-limbed, their heads protrude from their shoulders, and while not visibly graceful, are able to be quite nimble, rolling their bulky appendages. - Humanoids: Naturally thin, their stature is slight but this does not prevent their legs from being bent downwards during their gait. - Slender: A humanoid species in which the body and feet resemble those of a human but with smaller, more slender limbs. - Shell creatures: Slightly obese and short-limbed, their bodies can be relatively small but their legs and arms can be quite thick and muscular. While at rest, their legs are bent at the knee so that their body is hunched. - Human-like: Tall, thin, and bulky, they possess a robust and heavily muscled upper body. * Use of the above description within the game itself is permissible, and is also deemed to be an accurate and faithful representation of the species. * Images of the orcs and humanoids are real game sprites re-used. All other creatures are fictional stock character sprites. * No part of this pack may be used without permission from the copyright holder. * This pack is for use in RPG Maker series. * You may not use my sprites within other games - You may not use my sprites without permission! * This pack is for use in commercial projects. * If you need to use any information within my sprites in-game, please email me, and I can send you a copy of the permission I granted. * There are NO SLAP GAMES in this pack! * This pack is free to use for private projects and modification of other packs, but your work should be posted on the Internet under the name of the creator. * You can buy additional packs, or create your own, c9d1549cdd

Kyle B 7 years ago No real intro/note here. I'm just gonna drop my story out here. If you wanna know the universe of this series don't read any farther, if you don't wanna know the universe and what's going on at all just skip down a few pages. I was pregnant for the first time and tired. In no hurry to have another kid. 28 weeks along when my wife got a call that our 1st kid was down for the count. I felt horrible for some reason. I guess because this was my chance to finally be there for a newborn and I didn't even know what I was there for. The morning we found out I was right there. It didn't hit me right away, either. As we knew the child wasn't going to survive a few hours and were rushing to make a birthing announcement, I felt a strong urge to do something silly, give something. Anything really, just something. I poured myself a cup of coffee, grabbed the newspaper off my doorstep (I read the paper while I was getting ready in the morning and often saw my children occupied in a reading corner) and out of nowhere a voice in my head told me to buy a ticket to birds. The first word I had heard out of my baby's mouth that morning was "bird" after a voice said "fly." I knew I needed to pay attention now. Flight. They were actually born out of flight. I bought the paper at 5am and while I was drinking my coffee, when the paper came open I scribbled a note to my wife for her to give the baby to my kids to read later. She knew it was birds. I would be there for that. I remember writing "Birds" underneath my note at 5am that morning. My baby's first word was "birds", that was her first command and I was going to be there. Get ready to take off! Before I knew it, I handed my kids a piece of newspaper, not telling her anything, because I was going to let them know after it happened. She was born an hour later. So this is my story, not really my life. I'm the father, the seat warmers. The man of the house, the mother has been there once. The best I could do is try to
